PRICE THREE CENTS

HARD!

General Black is Bitterly Criticised.

Senator Ingalls Launches Into Him, But Voorhees and Others Defend the Commissioner.

The Proceedings in the Senate and House To-day Given in Full.

GENERAL BLACK

The Subject of a Very Bitter Senate Debate.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—During the consideration of a private pension bill in the senate this afternoon, Mr. Ingalls severely criticized General Black, commissioner of pensions, declaring him to be an imposter, whom congress granted the highest pension rate on false allegations of his being a "wreck." He protested against Gen. Black's enjoyment of such pension while opposing pensions to other soldiers. Mr. Cockrell defended Mr. Black's administration of his office, citing figures to show more claims allowed under his administration than in any year in former administrations. Mr. Voorhees warmly defended Mr. Black, and denied there had been any false allegations in the matter of his application for pension. He represented Black's condition at the time as one of absolute and complete disability.

A BIG DAY

In the House and Many Measures Handled.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The senate this afternoon passed the Atlantic and Pacific railroad land forfeiture bill. The conferees upon the postoffice appropriation bill were unable to agree upon any of the points at issue.

Also adversely, the senate bill for the admission of the state of Dakota and the organization of the territory of Lincoln. Referred to a committee of the whole.

Mr. Baker, of New York, filed minority reports on both these measures. Mr. Mabury, from the committee on ways and means, reported adversely the bill to carry into effect the convention made between the United States and Mexico, signed January 20, 1883. To the committee of the whole.

Mr. Hewitt, of New York, presented a minority report. Mr. Randall submitted a conference report on the urgent deficiency bill and it was agreed to.

The house went into committee of the whole on the oleomargarine bill. Mr. Millard gave his hearty support to the bill and quoted statistics to show the injury which the manufacture of bogus butter had worked upon the exportation of American dairy products.

All is Peace Again.

ATHENS, May 25.—The Greek and Turkish armies are mutually surrendering prisoners and the positions they respectively captured during the frontier fighting of the last few days, and both armies will, to-day, commence retiring from the frontier.

Drove Away From Robbers.

FORT KEOGH, Mont., May 25.—The stage running from Melrose to Glendale was attacked Saturday about nine miles from the former town. The driver, Geo. Ferguson, was shot and killed. There were two men, two ladies and a little girl in the stage at the time. One of the men seized the reins and drove into Glendale at full speed.

Great Thoughts.

The good we can each accomplish in this world is small. The good that all men in all ages could accomplish if they would be done. But in order that this may be done each working being must serve his own generation and do his part to render the next generation more efficient.—T. D. Woolsey.

When you make a mistake don't look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your own mind, and then look forward. Mistakes are lessons of wisdom. The past cannot be changed. The future is yet in your power.—Hugh White.

Get into the habit of looking for the silver lining of the cloud, and when you have found it, continue to look at it, rather than at the leaden gray in the middle. It will help you over many hard places.—A. A. Willets.

Always say a kind word if you can, if only that it may come in, perhaps, with singular opportuneness, entering some mournful man's darkened room like a beautiful firefly, whose happy convolutions he cannot but watch, forgetting his many troubles.—Arthur Helps.

Doing nothing for others is the undoing of one's self. We must be purposely kind and generous, or we miss the best part of existence. The heart that goes out of itself gets large and full of joy. This is the great secret of the inner life. We do ourselves the most good doing something for others.—George Eliot.

It seems to me we can never give up longing and wishing while we are thoroughly alive. There are certain things we feel to be beautiful and good, and we must hunger after them.—George Eliot.

Hancock and the Little Girl.

The bravest are the tenderest. On the day after Gen. Hancock was defeated for President, a little girl named Virgie Wentz, living in Lancaster, this State, wrote him a letter of condolence. This letter he answered, and letter followed letter until the correspondence numbered upwards of fifty by the time the general died. Upon one occasion when he was passing through Lancaster she heard of his coming and hurried to the depot to see the hero and, if possible, meet him. She did meet him, and the meeting was an affectionate one. A large crowd had gathered at the train, and distinguished people pressed forward for a shake of his hand, and while he was courteous and agreeable to all, he had more attention for that child than he had for anyone else, and when the train was about to start and he lifted her little form in his strong arms and kissed her good-by the people cheered, for they saw how tender-hearted a brave man is.—Carlisle (Pa.) Volunteer.

The Game Not Worth the Cost.

While Judge Walton was at work in his chamber at Portland one day many years ago, drawing an opinion in a knotty case, a certain lawyer came in. This lawyer (he is now deceased) was a thin, tooth-pickish, dandish sort of man, whom the Judge did not like very well, and than whom he had rather seen Daniel Pratt himself walking into his chamber. "Well, Brother Lightweight, what can I do for you this morning?" asked Judge Walton, hoping to get rid of the fellow. "Nothing," he replied; "I only came in to make you a call." After a disagreeable silence the Judge looked up again, and asked: "Brother Lightweight, why don't you get married?" "Because I can't afford it; how much do you suppose it costs me to live now?" The Judge said he couldn't guess. "Well, it costs me $10,000 a year for just my own living." An expression of surprise came on the Judge's face. "Lightweight," said he, "I wouldn't pay it; it isn't worth it!"—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

THE Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche hears that Miss Murfree (Charles Egbert Craddock) "will soon marry a big, raw-boned Tennessee mountaineer, presumably captured while she was collecting stories of Tennessee mountain life." It hopes that, "with enlarged experience and nearer points of observation, her newer creations may be even truer to nature and more lifelike than those with which she has already delighted the public."

Mamma's dot it looted up." Last evening Bode armed himself and walked down to the drug store. Kylin, who was standing out on the sidewalk, saw him and walked inside. DR. JOHN RAUCH, of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois State Board of Health, states that "there is more danger of cholera this year than there has been since 1881." Dr. Rauch is a physician of experience whose practice and knowledge of that whereof he speaks enables him to do so with almost absolute certainty. The reasons he gives for his views are these: "Here, before the disease has been confined to such countries as we had little commercial relations with. Now the outbreaks are near points whence come the East India mails. England and Germany are both uneasy, and it is through them that it is most likely to reach the United States."

Lafayette, Ind., shares, with twenty-three other cities and towns in the United States, the distinction of being named after the great French patriot who did so much for this country and his own, but it is alone in the honor of being mentioned in the Encyclopedia Britannica. Life in the lively pushing city on the Wabash, with its many cozy homes, fine public buildings and general air of prosperity and enterprise, is very pleasant, and recently many of its citizens felt that it has assumed new charms since rheumatism has been robbed of its terrors.

This great benefactor, however, is not one which rejoices in this particular Lafayette alone, but it has been given to other Lafayettes as well, and to the world. Athliphoros is the magic remedy which drives away rheumatism and neuralgia, and Lafayette has only shown its characteristic enterprise in recognizing the new man's virtues. Among those whom it has benefited is Mrs. Francis Heath, of No. 79 Ferry street, an old resident and the mother of banker Heath. In answer to one who recently called on her to learn the facts in the case she gave this account:

"I have had rheumatic pains in my feet for a number of years. They affected me at times so that it was with much difficulty that I could walk, especially in going down stairs. Athliphoros was first recommended to me by Bishop Bowman. I did not get it at that time, but kept trying other medicines. It was again recommended to me by a lady. I then sent for and bought a bottle. I took a dose, and it seemed to me as if I could feel it go through my system until it came directly to the sore spot. It felt just as a little stream of water flows when during its course it comes in contact with a public. One or the other must give way. The water may run around the stone, but that was not the way Athliphoros did. It did not go around the pain, but drove it away. The relief was almost instantaneous. While I am getting along in years and cannot expect to get rid entirely of these pains at once, yet a small dose of Athliphoros in a little cream—the way in which I find most pleasant to take it—relieves the pain immediately."

Mr. Baldrige, who is in the real estate and insurance business at No. 43 South Third street, and who lives at No. 17 North Sixth street, happening to be passing while Mrs. Heath was speaking, he called him in and he gladly told how he had been cured of rheumatism by Athliphoros.

"I was just about to start down to my office one morning last winter," he said, "when a terrible pain took me right in the hip and then ran down the sciatic nerve as quick as lightning. It was with much pain and distress that I managed to get down to my office at all. My business being such that it was necessary for me to be at the office every day, I was obliged to hobble along and get there the best I could. I suffered for some time in this way, trying all kinds of remedies, but nothing seemed to check the disease until I commenced using Athliphoros. The first four doses gave me relief. I only used one bottle, and am perfectly well, as you see me now. I have never had any return of the pain since I took the Athliphoros."

If you cannot get Athliphoros of your druggist, we will send it express, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you pay it from your druggist, as it is insured it will not be tampered with in transit, and order at once from us, as directed. ATHLIPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

There are a few druggists who are more to make a large profit on a worthless article than to wait for the prosperity that ultimately results from honest dealing. These are the men who when asked for a Benson's Caprine Plaster, will recommend some cheap and trashy substitute or imitation, saying it is "just as good." Sometimes they will do up an advertisement of the plaster without remark, allowing the customer to suppose he has Benson's. If the valueless plaster is returned, Cheap can only say "I am a mistake"—if, however, he has done a good stroke of business. The public are cautioned against John and all his ilk. Buy of respectable druggists only. The genuine Benson's plaster has the "Three Seals" trade mark and the word "Caprine" cut in the center, 517-4w

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., is proud of Joe, a dog of superior intelligence. He has been known to seize an ear of corn, carry it to a rat hole, shell off a few kernels, back off out of sight, and then bounce upon the rat thus enticed to destruction.

The old story of the child and the serpent comes anew from Cartersville, Georgia. This time the child was the 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Knight. The little one was discovered by her mother having a good time with a poisonous snake in the back yard. The snake seemed to be enjoying the fun. But Mrs. Knight killed it, of course, and then nearly went into hysterics.

It appears that Gov. Swineford, of Alaska, who has lately returned to the larger part of the United States, is to be married. Possibly that cold climate conserves and accumulates all the warmth in one's nature, ready for demonstration on occasion. Possibly a man, observing the prosperity of a great Alaska company, thinks he ought to be sealed to somebody.

THERE is some diversity of opinion as to whether working in tobacco factories is injurious to a person's health. A New York physician, who has investigated the subject, says that the new workmen always experience some difficulty in getting accustomed to the atmosphere of the shop, but when once habituated to work their complaint ceases, and they are as healthy as any other class of workmen.

A girl from Bath, Maine, had scarlet fever while at boarding school. She recovered and went home, and a trunk containing clothing worn while she was ill, was put away in the garret. Six months afterward two little children playing in the garret opened the trunk, and took out some of the clothing. In a week both were taken very sick with scarlet fever, and one died. No other persons in the neighborhood were ill.

HON. EDWARDS PIERREPONT tells an interviewer: "I am a believer in bimetalism. When I was Minister to England I paid much attention to the question. I had in that country exceptional opportunities for observing the effect of monometallism, or of having gold alone as a standard of value and basis of currency. I visited France frequently, and in that country studied the effect of bimetalism. My observations satisfied me that the only reason why any man in the United States opposes bimetalism is because he lacks information on the subject."

I HEARD the other day from a high Confederate source, writes a correspondent of the New York World, a true history of the cause which led to the death of Confederate Senator Yancey. Yancey, when he returned from England, made a report to the Confederate Senate of his failure to secure recognition of the Southern Confederacy in England. It was in that speech he used the oft quoted sentence: "Cotton is no longer king." He said then that the Confederacy could give no guarantee if it were recognized of its ability to maintain a stable form of government. The State's rights theory carried to an extreme would soon result in anarchy. This speech was made in executive session of the Confederate Senate. During the debate which followed he became involved in a heated dispute with Ben Hill. During the discussion an insult was given by Yancey, or at least Hill regarded it as an insult, and he resented it. He picked up a large glass inkstand and threw it at Yancey. It struck him upon the spine, below the center of the back. He fell over into his seat and fainted. From that blow he never recovered. He died several months afterward. His illness was a spinal trouble, resulting from the blow given him by the inkstand thrown by Mr. Hill.

GIRLS owing lockets made from genuine United States coins would better not throw them away, or give them to the cook when "he" goes away with "another," for, as their manufacture has been forbidden by the Treasury, their number is perforce limited, and by the time the second centennial comes around they will be valuable relics. Somebody is always telling girls to look to the future. Here is their chance.

SIMON CAMERON had a queer dinner party the other day. The guests were as follows: Senators Logan, of Illinois, Butler, of South Carolina, Blackburn and Beck, of Kentucky, Morrill, of Vermont, Gray, of Delaware, Hearst, of California, Hale, of Maine, J. D. Cameron, of Pennsylvania, and Congressmen Randall, of Pennsylvania, and Arnot, of New York; ex-Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh, Gov. Pattison, Col. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, George E. Roberts, Charles E. Pugh, and Frank Thompson, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Charles A. Dana, and Lawrence Jerome, of New York. Then there were some choice spirits from Philadelphia, Harrisburg, and Lancaster.

Miss Mary Muckfoos, of Reading, forty-five years old, decided that life was not worth living. She made careful preparations for death. She placed a board six feet long, covered with a sheet, on two chairs in the best room, where her body might be "laid out." Near it she placed a shroud, and a piece of crape to be fastened to the front door. She drove a nail in the door-casing to which to fasten the crape. This done, she put the heads of a dozen matches in boiling water and drank the mixture, match heads and all. Then she went to the graves of her parents and awaited death. She was discovered and saved. In the evening, when asked if she would again attempt suicide, she said: "I don't know; I guess not."

Is Your Liver out of Order? Then is your whole system deranged—the blood is impure, the breath offensive, you have a headache, feel languid, dispirited and nervous, have no appetite, your sleep is troubled and unrefreshing. To prevent a more serious condition, take at once a half tablespoonful of Simmons Liver Regulator, three times a day—it will soon restore the healthy action of the liver, bowels and kidneys. "I recommend Simmons Liver Regulator to all my friends, as I have personally known it to cure all liver disorders and sick headache." A. MERRITT, Beverly, N. J.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE Cod Liver Oil, With Hypophosphates. Is more reliable as an agent in the cure of consumption, chronic coughs and emaciation, than any remedy known to medical science. It is so prepared that the potency of these two most valuable specifics is largely increased. It is also very palatable.

They are Not Sorry.
That is one thing nobody ever regrets—that is, the day they first adopted Parker's Tonic as their regular family medicine. Its range is so wide, and its good effects so sure, that nothing else, except good nursing, are needed in a great majority of cases. Buy it, try it, and afterwards it will not require any praise from us.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones. A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. Ry Co., Eaton, Co.
I find Ely's Cream Balm good for catarrh of long standing.—M. N. Lasley, 934 West Chestnut St., Louisville.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-1904wly.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

THE latest advices from England, says the Chicago Tribune, intimate that India is now determining the prices paid for wheat in those markets, as the United States did a few years ago. This is the opinion of the gentlemen sending them, and they may be right. Some of them have hinted that there is an additional reason why Englishmen should patronize the India wheat market just now, that being found in the attitude of Russia. To take as little wheat as possible from the land of the great bear, and encourage its cultivation in the south of Asia, is at once to furnish to the first but little of the stuff that has been called the sinews of war, and to grapple the latter to the hearts of people in the old country with hooks of steel. The making of India a feeder of bread to the British Islands, and a receiver of the pecuniary return for such service, will tend to make its people more loyal and more ready to furnish military aid in the struggle with Russia which that country would seem to be preparing to provoke. At the present moment a further decline in the price of silver is enabling the mother country to buy more cheaply than heretofore, and the best of wheat from Calcutta is being offered for shipment in June and July at the very low price of six shillings and sixpence per cental, or ninety-three and a half cents per bushel of sixty pounds. The quality of the grain is said to be a little of the flinty order, but the English millers are largely introducing the changes in their machinery necessary to enable them to handle it to the best advantage, and they evidently look upon the supply of this class of wheat as having "come to stay." There is not much chance, therefore, of our soon seeing high prices possible to be obtained for our surplus wheat. It is to be dependent on Europe to furnish a market for it. One significant fact of the present situation is that our best foreign markets for wheat are in Italy, Spain and Portugal, all of which countries could be advantageously supplied from Black Sea ports if the latter had much to spare. Perhaps this fact is the best commentary on the statement that Russian wheat is being freely offered in England for shipment before the time of next harvest.

A SCIENTIFIC EPOCH.

WHISKEY VS. FUSIL OIL.
It is a fact not generally known that there is not a medicine to-day that enters so largely into the practice of the medical profession for the treatment of the sick and debilitated as alcohol in the form of whiskey. There is not an intelligent physician in the country that has not had occasion to prescribe it daily, nor a hospital, infirmary or charitable institution that does not keep it constantly on hand as a need. In its pure state it is acknowledged to be the best stimulant, the best curative, and the only cure for consumption, hemorrhages, malaria and dyspepsia. It will no doubt astonish our readers, when informed and sustained by statistics, that nearly one-sixth of all the whiskey sold in this country, at this time, is dispensed by druggists and grocers. So important is alcohol in the treatment of disease that Professor Angus Flint, of the Bellevue Hospital, Medical College, New York (Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine), says: "The judicious use of alcoholic stimulants is one of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicine during the last half century." Two ounces of alcohol contain more nutriment than ten ounces of lean meat. It is the only thing that enters the blood direct, without digestive effort of the stomach, and it is therefore, peculiarly fitted for the week and debilitated. Whiskey has always been recognized by the medical profession as the best form in which to take alcohol, only one objection being urged against it, i. e., the presence of fusil oil. The elimination of this deadly poison has for centuries been the cause of more investigation and experiment among scientists and chemists, owing to the important part whiskey plays in the treatment of disease, than any one medicine known to the pharmacopoeia. It was not until within the last decade that the secret of elimination was accidentally discovered in Canada, by old Mr. Duffy, who bequeathed it to his son, who organized the Duffy Malt Whiskey Co. of Baltimore, Md., which company now possesses the secret, and it is to day the discoverer and sole manufacturer in the world of an absolutely pure whiskey. Already famous, it is familiarly known as Duffy's pure malt whiskey, which, aside from being pure, combines a food and stimulant quality.

Tile-Drained Roads.

We shall never have good roads in spring in our northern latitudes until water is removed from them by under-drains laid deeply enough so that heavily loaded wagons will not cut down and disturb them. The benefit from macadamizing is that the stones form an underdrain for water, but roads then will need to have side drains from their lowest spots.—American Cultivator.

It is observed from the report of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows at Indianapolis Friday, that steps will probably be taken to establish a permanent home for the aged and infirm Odd Fellows of the state, to be in charge of a board of directors. This would certainly be a noble move upon the part of the order in this state and be a monument to their glory for all time to come. How would Fort Wayne do for a location for the building?

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen have their annual excursion to Warsaw Thursday, May 27th. This place is becoming quite a popular resort for excursion parties and is fast growing in favor. Sisson is well known as a capital comedian. The comical Cawthornes are among the finest artists in their line and their musical specialties are wonderfully unique and pleasing.

Mr. George Fox has lately refitted the parlors over his restaurant for his ice cream parlors. A new and beautiful carpet has been put down and the room presents a decidedly handsome appearance. The Fox's are caterers from "away back" and at their opening Saturday evening a grand surprise will be in store for all who may be in attendance.

If Messrs. Sullivan, Harper and company desire to hold a reunion and sham battle this year, why not have it at a time that will not interfere with the fair. Last year it killed the fair almost entirely by having it two weeks before. If they want a reunion why not have it the later part of June or the first week in July. It would then not interfere with the fair. We hope that the business men of Fort Wayne will examine this matter carefully. The fair association has never asked a penny of aid, pays all its bills in full, and now that they have prospects for a big fair—being in two of the largest fair circuits in the United States—it is hoped that the business men of Fort Wayne will do nothing to injure it in any manner whatever.

DOES IT INCLUDE ALLEN?

The Right of the State to Swamp and Lake Lands Sustained by the Supreme Court.

The state supreme court yesterday gave a decision of unusual importance, inasmuch as it sustains the right of the state of Indiana to thousands of acres of land in the northern part of the state. The particular case at issue is known as the "Beaver lake case," and upon the decision of yesterday depends the disposition of about twenty more cases that are now pending, one in the federal court, the decision in which, it is understood, Judge Woods has been holding off until after the ruling of the supreme court. In 1850 the general government, through an act of congress, ceded to the state of Indiana the title to all the lakes and overflowed lands in Northern Indiana, and in 1853 patents were issued for them. Since then, however, various eastern capitalists and others who owned lands surrounding these lakes have claimed to own the lakes themselves, in which the water was directly situated, and thousands of acres of land from which the water had receded. Much of this has become quite valuable for agricultural purposes. About 8,000 acres were involved in the Beaver Lake case, and probably 60,000 or 70,000 acres in all the cases. Since Judge Ford has been attorney-general he has given a great deal of study and investigation to these cases, and nearly two years ago, brought suit against the Portsmouth savings bank and against the state, and this was made a test case and appealed. The decision yesterday, which was given in a very careful and comprehensive opinion by Judge Zollars, reverses the ruling of the lower court and instructs it to grant the appellants motion for a new trial and sustains the demurer to the cross-complaint. The effect of the decision is to uphold the state's right to the lands in question and all others similarly acquired.

The Horse Show.

Have you seen Prof. Bristol's "Equine School?" If you haven't you might as well admit that you couldn't tell the difference between a horse or a mule. The fact is, if you haven't seen these horses and the mules and won't go, you are certainly unable to distinguish between them, as a lawyer would say, because you do not know how much sense horses and mules have. To ascertain this information you must see for yourself, since, if we were to tell you, you would laugh at the truth as stranger than fiction and thing we were telling you "a fish story" instead of a "horse truth."

These horses and mules, especially Denver, can actually do everything but talk, but still they appear to perfectly understand "talk," and obey every command given them—in fact they understand and pantomime better than any human mutes we ever saw. As a clown Denver has no human rival since Dan Rice became a temperance lecturer, because Denver gets excited over the bottle. Col. Wood acts as if he could run the opera house. Mattie is as coquettish as a Baltimore belle and very pretty; Lotta is petite, sedate and a lovely trotter and pacer, with the instincts of her sex; Eagle is a splendid horse, while Alphonse is a daisy.

The Duty to Be a Lady.

It is the first duty of a woman to be a lady. Good breeding is good sense. Bad manners in women is immorality. Awkwardness may be ineradicable. Bashfulness is constitutional. Ignorance of etiquette is the result of circumstances. All can be abandoned, and do not banish man or woman from the amenities of their kind. But self-possession, unshrinking and aggressive coarseness of demeanor, may be reckoned as a State prison offense, and certainly merits that mild form of restraint called imprisonment for life. It is a shame for women to be lectured on their manners. It is a bitter shame that they need it. Women are the umpires of society. It is they to whom all mooted points should be referred. To be a lady is more than to be a prince. A lady is always in her right inalienably worthy of respect. To a lady, prince and peasant alike bow. Do not be restrained. Do not have impulses that need restraint. Do not wish to dance with the prince unsought; feel differently. Be such that you confer your honor. Carry yourself so loftily that men shall look up to you for reward, not to you in rebuke. The natural sentiment of man toward woman is reverence. He loses a large means of grace when he is obliged to account for a being to be trained into propriety. A man's idea is not wounded when a woman fails in worldly wisdom; but if in grace, in tact, in sentiment, in delicacy, in kindness she should be found wanting, he receives an inward hurt.—Gail Hamilton.

General Black is Bitterly Criticised.

Senator Ingalls Launches Into Him, But Voorhees and Others Defend the Commissioner.

The Proceedings in the Senate and House To-day Given in Full.

GENERAL BLACK

The Subject of a Very Bitter Senate Debate.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—During the consideration of a private pension bill in the senate this afternoon, Mr. Ingalls severely criticized General Black, commissioner of pensions, declaring him to be an imposter, whom congress granted the highest pension rate on false allegations of his being a "wreck." He protested against Gen. Black's enjoyment of such pension while opposing pensions to other soldiers. Mr. Cockrell defended Mr. Black's administration of his office, citing figures to show more claims allowed under his administration than in any year in former administrations. Mr. Voorhees warmly defended Mr. Black, and denied there had been any false allegations in the matter of his application for pension. He represented Black's condition at the time as one of absolute and complete disability.

Great Thoughts.

The good we can each accomplish in this world is small. The good that all men in all ages could accomplish if they would is vast. But in order that this may be done each working being must serve his own generation and do his part to render the next generation more efficient.—T. D. Woolsey.

When you make a mistake don't look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your own mind, and then look forward. Mistakes are lessons of wisdom. The past cannot be changed. The future is yet in your power.—Hugh White.

Get into the habit of looking for the silver lining of the cloud, and when you have found it, continue to look at it, rather than at the leaden gray in the middle. It will help you over many hard places.—A. A. Willets.

Always say a kind word if you can, if only that it may come in, perhaps, with singular opportuneness, entering some mournful man's darkened room like a beautiful firefly, whose happy convolutions he cannot but watch, forgetting his many troubles.—Arthur Helps.

Doing nothing for others is the undoing of one's self. We must be purposely kind and generous, or we miss the best part of existence. The heart that goes out of itself gets large and full of joy. This is the great secret of the inner life. We do ourselves the most good doing something for others.—Hornet Alman.

It seems to me we can never give up longing and wishing while we are thoroughly alive. There are certain things we feel to be beautiful and good, and we must hunger after them.—George Eliot.

Hancock and the Little Girl.

The bravest are the tenderest. On the day after Gen. Hancock was defeated for President, a little girl named Virgie Wentz, living in Lancaster, this State, wrote him a letter of condolence. This letter he answered, and letter followed letter until the correspondence numbered upwards of fifty by the time the general died. Upon one occasion when he was passing through Lancaster she heard of his coming and hurried to the depot to see the hero and, if possible, meet him. She did meet him, and the meeting was an affectionate one. A large crowd had gathered at the train, and distinguished people pressed forward for a shake of his hand, and while he was courteous and agreeable to all, he had more attention for that child than he had for anyone else, and when the train was about to start and he lifted her little form in his strong arms and kissed her good-by by the people cheered, for they saw how tender-hearted a brave man is.—Carlisle (Pa.) Volunteer.

The Game Not Worth the Cost.

While Judge Walton was at work in his chamber at Portland one day many years ago, drawing an opinion in a knotty case, a certain lawyer came in. This lawyer (he is now deceased) was a thin, tooth-pickish, dandish sort of man, whom the Judge did not like very well, and then whom he had rather seen Daniel Pratt himself walking into his chamber. "Well, Brother Lightweight, what can I do for you this morning?" asked Judge Walton, hoping to get rid of the fellow. "Nothing," he replied; "I only came in to make you a call." After a disagreeable silence the Judge looked up again, and asked: "Brother Lightweight, why don't you get married?" "Because I can't afford it; how much do you suppose it costs me to live now?" The Judge said he couldn't guess. "Well, it costs me $6,000 a year for just my own living." An expression of surprise came on the Judge's face. "Lightweight," said he, "I wouldn't say it; it isn't worth it!"—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

The Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche hears that Miss Murrell (Charles Egbert Craddock) "will soon marry a big, raw-boned Tennessee mountaineer, presumably captured while she was collecting stories of Tennessee mountain life." It hopes that, "with enlarged experience and nearer points of observation, her newer creations may be even truer to nature and more lifelike than those with which she has already delighted the public."

DR. JOHN RAUCH, of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois State Board of Health, states that "there is more danger of cholera this year than there has been since 1881." Dr. Rauch is a physician of experience whose practice and knowledge of that wherof he speaks enables him to do so with almost absolute certainty. The reasons he gives for his views are these: "Here, before the disease has been confined to such countries as we had little commercial relations with. Now the outbreaks are near points whence come the East India mails. England and Germany are both uneasy, and it is through them that it is most likely to reach the United States."

COMMON SENSE IN LAFAYETTE.

Lafayette, Ind., shares, with twenty-three other cities and towns in the United States, the distinction of being named after the great French patriot who did so much for this country and his own, but it is alone in the honor of being mentioned in the Encyclopedia Britannica. Life in the lively pushing city on the Wabash, with its many cosy homes, fine public buildings and general air of prosperity and enterprise, is very pleasant, and recently many of its citizens felt that it has assumed new charms since rheumatism has been robbed of its terrors.

This great benefaction, however, is not one which rejoices this particular Lafayette alone, but it has been given to other Lafayettes as well, and to the world. Athlophoros is the magic remedy which drives away rheumatism and neuralgia, and Lafayette has only shown its characteristic enterprise in recognizing the new cure's many virtues. Among those whom it has benefited is Mrs. Francis Heath, of No. 79 Ferry street, an old resident and the mother of banker Heath. In answer to one who recently called on her to learn the facts in the case she gave this account:

"I have had rheumatic pains in my feet for a number of years. They affected me at times so that it was with much difficulty that I could walk, especially in going down stairs. Athlophoros was first recommended to me by Bishop Bowman. I did not get it at that time, but kept trying other medicines. It was again recommended to me by a lady. I then sent for and bought a bottle. I took a dose, and it seemed to me as if I could feel it go through my system until it came directly to the sore spot. It felt just as a little stream of water looks when during its course it comes in contact with a pebble. One or the other must give way. The water may run around the stone, but that was not the way Athlophoros did. It did not go around the pain, but drove it away. The relief was almost instantaneous. While I am getting along in years and cannot expect to get rid entirely of these pains at once, yet a small dose of Athlophoros in a little cream—the way in which I find most pleasant to take it—relieves the pain immediately."

Mr. Baldridge, who is in the real estate and insurance business at No. 94 South Third street, and who lives at No. 17 North Sixth street, happening to be passing while Mrs. Heath was speaking, he called him in and he gladly told him he had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros.

"I was just about to start down to my office one morning last winter," he said, "when a terrible pain took me right in the hip and then ran down the sciatic nerve as quick as lightning. It was with much pain and distress that I managed to get down to my office at all. My business being such that it was necessary for me to be at the office every day, I was obliged to hobble along and get there the best I could. I suffered for some time in this way, trying all kinds of remedies, but nothing seemed to check the disease until I commenced using Athlophoros. The first four doses gave me relief. I only used one bottle, and am perfectly well, as you see me now. I have never had any return of the pain since I took the Athlophoros."

You cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of your price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from our druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as direct from ATHLOPHOROS CO., 115 Wall Street, New York.

TWELVE varieties of fish may be caught in the waters of Lake Superior. They are the whitefish, herring, pickerel, pike, sturgeon, red and common siskiwet, small and large brook trout, suckers, and perch.

CARTERSVILLE, GA., is proud of Joe, a dog of superior intelligence. He has been known to seize an ear of corn, carry it to a rat hole, shell off a few kernels, back off out of sight, and then bounce upon the rat thus enticed to destruction.

The old story of the child and the serpent comes anew from Cartersville, Georgia. This time the child was the 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Knight. The little one was discovered by her mother having a good time with a poisonous snake in the back yard. The snake seemed to be enjoying the fun, but Mrs. Knight killed it, of course, and then nearly went into hysterics.

It appears that Gov. Swineford, of Alaska, who has lately returned to the larger part of the United States, is to be married. Possibly that cold climate conserves and accumulates all the warmth in one's nature, ready for demonstration on occasion. Possibly a man, observing the prosperity of a great Alaska company, thinks he ought to be sealed to somebody.

THERE is some diversity of opinion as to whether working in tobacco factories is injurious to a person's health. A New York physician, who has investigated the subject, says that the new workmen always experience some difficulty in getting accustomed to the atmosphere of the shop, but when once habituated to work their complaint ceases, and they are as healthy as any other class of workmen.

A girl from Bath, Maine, had scarlet fever while at boarding school. She recovered and went home, and a trunk containing clothing worn while she was ill was put away in the garret. Six months afterward two little children playing in the garret opened the trunk, and took out some of the clothing. In a week both were taken very sick with scarlet fever, and one died. No other persons in the neighborhood were ill.

HON. EDWARDS PIERREPONT tells an interviewer: "I am a believer in bimetalism. When I was Minister to England I paid much attention to the question. I had in that country exceptional opportunities for observing the effect of monometallism, or of having gold alone as a standard of value and basis of currency. I visited France frequently, and in that country studied the effect of bimetalism. My observations satisfied me that the only reason why any man in the United States opposes bimetalism is because he lacks information on the subject."

I HEARD the other day from a high Confederate source, writes a correspondent of the New York World, a true history of the cause which led to the death of Confederate Senator Yancey. Yancey, when he returned from England, made a report to the Confederate Senate of his failure to secure recognition of the Southern Confederacy in England. It was in that speech he used the oft quoted sentence: "Cotton is no longer king." He said then that the Confederacy could give no guarantee if it were recognized of its ability to maintain a stable form of government. The State's rights theory carried to an extreme would soon result in anarchy. This speech was made in executive session of the Confederate Senate. During the debate which followed he became involved in a heated dispute with Don Hill. During the discussion an insult was given by Yancey, or at least Hill regarded it as an insult, and he resented it. He picked up a large glass inkstand and threw it at Yancey. It struck him upon the spine, below the center of the back. He fell over into his seat and fainted. From that blow he never recovered. He died several months afterward. His illness was a spinal trouble, resulting from the blow given him by the inkstand thrown by Mr. Hill.

GIRLS owing lockets made from genuine United States coins would better not throw them away, or give them to the cook when "he" goes away with "another," for, as their manufacture has been forbidden by the Treasury, their number is perforce limited, and by the time the second centennial comes around they will be valuable relics. Somebody is always telling girls to look to the future. Here is their chance.

SIMON CAMERON had a queer dinner party the other day. The guests were as follows: Senators Logan, of Illinois, Butler, of South Carolina, Blackburn and Beck, of Kentucky, Morrill, of Vermont, Gray, of Delaware, Hearst, of California, Hale, of Maine, J. D. Cameron, of Pennsylvania, and Congressmen Randall, of Pennsylvania, and Arnot, of New York; ex-Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh, Gov. Pattison, Col. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, George E. Roberts, Charles E. Pugh, and Frank Thompson, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Charles A. Dana, and Lawrence Jerome, of New York. Then there were some choice spirits from Philadelphia, Harrisburg, and Lancaster.

Mrs. MARY MUCKFOOS, of Reading, forty-five years old, decided that life was not worth living. She made careful preparations for death. She placed a board six feet long, covered with a sheet, on two chairs in the best room, where her body might be "laid out." Near it she placed a shroud, and a piece of crape to be fastened to the front door. She drove a nail in the door-casing to which to fasten the crape. This done, she put the heads of a dozen matches in boiling water and drank the mixture, match heads and all. Then she went to the graves of her parents and awaited death. She was discovered and saved. In the evening, when asked if she would again attempt suicide, she said: "I don't know; I guess not."

Then is your whole system deranged—the blood is impure, the breath offensive, you have a headache, feel languid, dispirited and nervous, have no appetite, your sleep is troubled and unrefreshing. I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes up "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19, 1904.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT. When your health is poor and you are suffering from general debility, get a bottle of NICHOLS' BARK AND IRON, and it will help you.

THE latest advices from England, says the Chicago Tribune, intimate that India is now determining the prices paid for wheat in those markets, as the United States did a few years ago. This is the opinion of the gentlemen sending them, and they may be right. Some of them have hinted that there is an additional reason why Englishmen should patronize the India wheat market just now, that being found in the attitude of Russia. To take as little wheat as possible from the land of the great bear, and encourage its cultivation in the south of Asia, is at once to furnish to the first but little of the stuff that has been called the sinews of war, and to grapple the latter to the hearts of people in the old country as with hooks of steel. The making of India a feeder of bread to the British Islands, and a receiver of the pecuniary return for such service, will tend to make its people more loyal and more ready to furnish military aid in the struggle with Russia which that country would seem to be preparing to provoke. At the present moment a further decline in the price of silver is enabling the mother country to buy more cheaply than heretofore, and the best of wheat from Calcutta is being offered for shipment in June and July at the very low price of six shillings and six-pence per cental, or ninety-three and a half cents per bushel of sixty pounds. The quality of the grain is said to be a little of the flinty order, but the English millers are largely introducing the changes in their machinery necessary to enable them to handle it to the best advantage, and they evidently look upon the supply of this class of wheat as having "come to stay." There is not much chance, therefore, of our soon seeing high prices possible to be obtained for our surplus wheat if we are to depend on Europe to furnish a market for it. One significant fact of the present situation is that our best foreign markets for wheat are in Italy, Spain, and Portugal, all of which countries could be advantageously supplied from Black Sea ports if the latter had much to spare. Perhaps this fact is the best commentary on the statement that Russian wheat is being freely offered in England for shipment before the time of next harvest.

A SCIENTIFIC EPOCH.

Whiskey With out Fusel Oil.

It is a fact not generally known that there is not a medicine to-day that enters so largely into the practice of the medical profession for the treatment of the sick and debilitated as alcohol in the form of whiskey. There is not an intelligent physician in the country that has not had occasion to prescribe it daily, nor a hospital, infirmary or curative institution that does not keep it constantly on hand as a need. In its pure state it is acknowledged to be the best stimulant, the best curative, and the only cure for consumption, hemorrhages, malaria and dyspepsia. It will no doubt astonish our readers, when informed and sustained by statistics, that nearly one-sixth of all the whiskey sold in this country, at this time, is dispensed by druggists and grocers. So important is alcohol in the treatment of disease that Professor Austin Flint, of the Bellevue Hospital, Medical College, New York (Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine), says: "The judicious use of alcoholic stimulants is one of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicine during the last half century." Two ounces of alcohol contain more nutriment than ten ounces of lean meat. It is the only thing that enters the blood direct, without digestive effort of the stomach, and it is, therefore, peculiarly fitted for the weak and debilitated. Whiskey has always been recognized by the medical profession as the best form in which to take alcohol, only the objection being urged against it, i. e., the presence of fusel oil. The elimination of this deadly poison has for centuries been the cause of more investigation and experiment among scientists and chemists, owing to the important part whiskey plays in the treatment of disease, than any one medicine known to the pharmacopoeia. It was not until within the last decade that the secret of elimination was accidentally discovered in Canada, by old Mr. Duffy, who bequeathed it to his son, who organized the Duffy Malt Whiskey Co. of Baltimore, Md., which company now possesses the secret, and it is to-day the discoverer and sole manufacturer in the world of an absolutely pure whiskey. Already famous, it is familiarly known as Duffy's pure malt whiskey, which, aside from being pure, combines a food and stimulant quality.

Tile-Drained Roads.

We shall never have good roads in spring in our northern latitudes until water is removed from them by under-drains laid deeply enough so that heavily loaded wagons will not cut down and disturb them. The benefit from macadamizing is that the stones form an underdrain for water, but roads then will need to have side drains from their lowest spots.—American Cultivator.

THE GALLANT FIFTY-FIRST.

Then came the memorable order from Burnside, which must have thrilled every member of the regiment. "Tell Stuart to send the Fifty-first Pennsylvania to take the bridge."

Along the valley's narrow gorge
The morning mist outspread,
While rifle and musket strong
Frowned grimly overhead.
To strike the thrust of line,
To reach the farther shore,
With men drawn up in line.

Along the crest a flash of fire
Broke red against the sky,
Along the hillside's narrow slope
Came back the quick reply.
Fiercely dashed up in haste,
His countenance aflame,
"The Fifty-first must storm the bridge,"
"Twas thus the order came."

"Fix bayonets!" Over Hartman's face
A strange smile sent its beam;
The red blood flushed his dusky cheek—
His dark eyes all gleam.
Sturges and Cook in vain essayed,
And others yet may try;
But now the gallant Fifty-first
Must storm the bridge or die.

Bright flashed the sword their leader drew—
"Charge!"—Like a simoon's blast,
The Fifty-first mid shot and shell
Rushed on—the bridge is passed;
The beaten foe in wild retreat
Is flying o'er the bridge,
Huzza! huzza! The Fifty-first
Has stormed Antietam's bridge!

Oh men of Pennsylvania,
Along your bloody route
Lies many a comrade dull of ear
Who may not hear you shout;
But o'er your country's wide domain
A pennant grand shall burst,
A nation's accolade by this—
O gallant Fifty-first!

CONFEDERATE DEAD OF MANASSAS.

The Neglected Cemetery Near Groveton, Virginia.

(Special Correspondence.)

BOSTON, May 24.—Travelers through those portions of the southern states which were the fields of active operations during the late war, will find among the chief points which attract their attention the government cemeteries, in which are interred the remains of those of our soldiers who fell in defense of the Union, generally located on some commanding eminence, prepared at great expense, systematically arranged, often beautifully adorned and well taken care of by a resident manager and his staff of associates, in the pay of the United States government.

I wonder how many think to ask themselves, "What became of the poor fellows who fell on the other side—the Confederates?" and so far as relates to those who died at or near Manassas I will endeavor to answer the question.

In May and June of '83 I made a pedestrian tour through "Old Virginia," and while en route from Centerville to Warrenton, and quite near Groveton, my attention was attracted by a peculiar looking gateway and fence, built of boards laid horizontally, and entirely different from the ordinary Virginia inclosure. The gate, also of wood, was made in two parts and was spanned by a plain wooden arch surmounted by a finial.

At this point the road passes through a cut about seven feet deep; and as there is not, and never has been, any regular approach to the gateway, it was necessary to climb the bank to get to it. I did this, and, passing through, I found myself in what had been an inclosure.

At first sight there is nothing to indicate the character of the place, and it was only after some time had elapsed that I noticed that I stood among graves, which I afterwards learned contained the remains of the Confederate dead who fell in the battle of Manassas, 1862.

Never has it been my lot to look upon a more neglected spot. The situation was one well adapted to the purpose—a ridge extending in from the road about 100 yards.

The fence extended along the road for perhaps 300 feet, and this, with the exception of the gateway, is in fair condition. The gates, however, each hung by a single hinge; the posts far out of perpendicular; the arch and its finial almost ready to fall; the fence in the rear and much of that on the sides had either entirely disappeared or lay rotting upon the ground. The ground itself was so completely covered with weeds and berry bushes that I did not realize that I was among the dead till I felt the graves with my feet. On inspection I found that the mounds were in rows extending in from the road at right angles, and through the center row and the number of graves in each, but found it impracticable, but I should judge there might be 500 or 1,000. One grave, and only one, is marked with the name of the occupant, the rest have no mark whatever. On the one I speak of there is a very neat marble headstone.

As I strolled about the place I was followed by a large white sow with a litter of pigs, grunting, squealing and rooting among the graves.

There can be no excuse for this state of things. The people of Virginia are not rich, but they can certainly afford to build a more fitting monument to the dead of the war, and if they have not the money for headstones let them at least drive the hogs out and sow the land with grass seed. It is quite certain that in its present condition it is a disgrace to Virginia and to her people, and the sight of it should make every Virginian bang his head for very shame.

On the following day I saw at the cemetery at Warrenton the monument which commemorates the Confederate dead. It is a simple shaft on a granite base, and is a very creditable piece of work. It bears an inscription to the effect that it was erected by 600 of Virginia's fair daughters to commemorate the heroism of her sons. As an old Federal soldier I sympathize with the object, but I confess that while looking at it I thought of that forlorn city of the dead at Groveton, and of its neglected and disgraceful condition, and it occurred to me that it would have done far more credit to the judgment of Virginia's daughters if they had invested in the purchase of their money in fencing, to keep the hogs from the spot which was drenched with their blood, and which was the scene of their valor, even if thereby it became necessary to curtail the fair proportions of the marble shaft on the hillside at Warrenton. Ex-President Arthur's Children.

The fact that ex-President Arthur seems to be slowly going out of life invests him and his belongings with interest. During the time of his residence in the White House it was known that he was a widower, with two children, Nellie and Allan. Mr. Arthur's wife, Commodore Herndon's daughter, died in January, 1881, after her husband had been elected vice-president.

Young Allan Arthur is a good deal of a dandy and dandy. He has never shown any very marked mental peculiarities, one way or the other. His only claim to distinction, so far as known, is that he broke a marriage engagement with a pretty girl while his father was president. He was then about 19 years old. Up to this time he is not known to have contracted any new ones.

ALLAN AND NELLIE ARTHUR.

Allan lives with his father in the house on Lexington avenue. Ex-President Arthur has not had a very jolly time of it in the last six years, and his painful, lingering illness at present is no improvement on the rest of his life. But throughout there has been one steady ray of sunshine to his life. That is his little daughter Nellie. She was about 12 years old when her father became president, an innocent, lovely, sweet little girl. She is now approaching womanhood. She resembles her father in face and features far more than her brother, and seems to be the best boy of the two.

Honoring Simon Cameron.

During the period of his active career no public man ever encountered more constant or more violent opposition than Simon Cameron, of Pennsylvania; yet, now that he has retired, to spend his green and vigorous old age among his neighbors, no one is more honored, more confided in, or more beloved than he. Not merely the members of his own party gather at his call, but the members of every party, and men of mark in every line of life, rejoice in the bounteous hospitality dispensed at his country home at Donegal, in Lancaster county.

A party of more than thirty gentlemen were entertained there recently, including a dozen senators, such as Morrill, of Vermont; Beck and Blackburn, of Kentucky; Gray, of Delaware; Logan, of Illinois; Hale, of Maine; Butler, of South Carolina, and Hearst, of California, with Samuel J. Randall, of Philadelphia; Governor Pattison, and John A. Aron, of New York, besides a number of conspicuous railroad men, journalists, lawyers, and manufacturers. It was a delightful occasion, and for years we have not seen Gen. Cameron in such strength or such spirits. —New York Sun.

The English Preacher Spurgeon.

The famous Spurgeon has the gout, or, rather, the gout has the famous Spurgeon. "Tis an home-trodden malady, and yet it should spare preachers. Probably Mr. Spurgeon is expiating the sins of some lawyer and portly ancestor who lived in the days when port was fit to drink and men were fit to drink it. It is a consolation to any Englishman to feel that, if he must have a disease, he has an hereditary one. Besides, the gout has a fondness for great company.

THREE REASONS.

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:—

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a great amount of good now more than any other time. Take it now.

Misplaced Sympathy.

"I am sorry you two ladies are going all that distance alone," I said to some friends going east some time ago. "If we see anybody on the train I know, I'll put you in his charge."

"Don't—I'd rather not," one of them answered. "Why?"

"Because you always get more attention from strangers. We are all right. If we have any chaperon he'll be bored to death and he will be disagreeable all the way. If we have none, every man on the train will be at our service and he'll only be too glad to attend to us."

"That's queer. I never thought of that."

"My dear boy, men are always in search of adventure, and a formal introduction or an intimate acquaintance makes it duty, and duty is always disagreeable."

"Well, I suppose you are right."

"Do you see that gentleman there? He's been quietly looking around to see what pretty women are on the train. Before we get to Port Costa he'll be asking my sister if he can do anything for her. She's prettier than I am. But what he is willing to do for her he'll do for me to keep me sweet."

"I don't think you'll get left yourself."

"Between you and me and the window I don't think I will."

And I left them with their arrangements all made as to how they were going to treat every man on the car. —San Francisco Chronicle.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1826. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage; it leads to temperance; it promotes digestion, dispels headache, and generally tones up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or change of business, while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Stomachic, or indigestion, or will be relieved.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, it will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons' Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver in action, and at the same time aid forward of weakening the digestive and assimilative powers of the system.
